2014 Annual Report to Council

The membership continues to seek out avenues to fulfill our mandate for the promotion of architecture to the public in partnership with other initiatives.

In June, the SLVSA elected a new board, with Scott Bailey taking the role of Society Chair, Jason-Emery Groen as Vice-Chair, and Trevor Timpany as Secretary. Gary Kembel will continue in his role as Treasurer.

The Society continued its funding (in conjunction with Northumberland Durham) for the Societies of Architects Prize, an award to the top design by a graduating Architectural Technology Diploma student at Loyalist College. This year's recipient was Halie Bradley, who was chosen by a jury of faculty and representatives of the profession, including David Mill representing the OAAAS.

The autumn meeting was a celebratory dinner at the Delta Waterfront for members, hosting President Birdsell's visit.

A sub-committee of volunteers from the membership was assembled to investigate costs and requirements involved in providing the Society with a digital and on-line presence. Quotes are currently being reviewed by the committee, with the intent of applying for additional funding for special projects from the OAA.

In other activities, the Society sponsored a bus rental for students of the Loyalist College Architectural Technology program so that they could attend the Interior Design Trade show, IDS 14, in Toronto.

We look forward to an active and engaged 2015.

Respectfully,

Scott Bailey, BA, OAA
Chair, Saint Lawrence Valley Society of Architects
